DEFINITION OF TERMS

Agricultural Economics

Crop and livestock estimates:--Statistical reports concerning the production of agricultural commodities and livestock products are prepared by the Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates in cooperation with the various States. Cooperative agreements indicate in detail the particular features covered thereby.

Demonstration of standard grades and tobacco sorting methods:--This agreement was entered into in order to provide demonstrations of standard grades of flue-cured and Burley tobacco and instructions to growers in proper preparation of tobacco for market.

Grading service:--A strictly grading service under cooperative agreements is conducted for some products, principally dairy and poultry products. This involves an examination of the products for grade, that is, quality. No inspection is conducted.

Grading and/or inspection service:--A few cooperative agreements with the States are so written as to provide grading for some agricultural commodities and inspection for others.

Market inspection service:--A market inspection service is carried on under the Farm Products Inspection Act at terminal markets on various commodities.

Market news service:--The Market News Service of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics is designed to furnish producers, consumers and dealers information concerning market conditions and prices of farm products and to obtain information for distribution to important consuming and distributing markets in the United States. Cooperative agreements with the States for this service cover fruits and vegetables, livestock, dairy and poultry products, and tobacco.

Radio market news service:--A radio Market News Service is conducted in cooperation with New England states. The object is to disseminate market news and information regarding the production, distribution and marketing of farm products as well as other subjects relating to the farm.

Shipping point inspection service:--This is a service performed under authority of the Farm Products Inspection Act involving the inspection at shipping points of certain perishable farm products specified therein and certification to shippers and other interested parties of the class, quality, and condition of the products.

Animal Industry

Bang's disease in cattle:--Bang's disease work consists of applying agglutination blood tests to cattle; the removal of reactors to the test; arranging for the proper cleaning and disinfection of premises occupied by livestock affected with Bang's disease, and giving instructions as to the proper method of handling herds in order to reduce and eradicate the infection. Federal indemnity payments are made to owners of reactors found in official work.

Cattle fever tick:--The eradication of the cattle fever tick has for its object the elimination of this species of tick from infested areas of the country, which is the indirect but essential factor in the transmission and perpetuation of the serious cattle disease known as splenetic, Southern or tick fever.

Hog cholera control:--Hog cholera control deals with the most destructive swine disease. Information is disseminated to the swine growers of the country on the most effective and practical methods of reducing the losses from this disease.

Scabies in sheep and cattle:--Cooperative scabies eradication work consists of inspecting all sheep or cattle, as the case may be, in areas where scabies exists or may have recently existed, and causing all animals found to be infected or exposed to be dipped under the supervision of Federal or state employees.

Tuberculosis in livestock:--The work of tuberculosis eradication consists of the tuberculin testing of cattle, swine, and poultry, and arranging for the proper cleaning and disinfection of premises occupied by livestock affected with tuberculosis. Federal indemnity payments are made to owners of cattle that react to the tuberculin tests.

National poultry improvement plan:--The primary purpose of the project is to identify, authoritatively, poultry breeding stock, hatching eggs, and chicks with respect to quality by describing them in terms uniformly accepted in all parts of the country. Protection is thereby afforded producers from unscrupulous competition and purchasers are enabled to buy with confidence. The ten State Departments of Agriculture with whom Animal Industry cooperates in the administration of the national poultry improvement plan act as their contact agency in the state and perform the work of immediate supervision of hatcheries and breeding flocks.

Biological Survey

Cooperation in control of injurious rodents:-- Rodents include prairie dogs, ground squirrels, pocket gophers, porcupines, jack rabbits, field mice and rats.

Cooperation in control of predatory animals:--Predators include coyotes, bobcats, mountain lions, wolves, etc.

Pittman-Robertson Activities:--The Pittman-Robertson Act provides that the Secretary of Agriculture shall cooperate with Fish and Game Departments of states in wildlife restoration projects.

Division of Marketing and Marketing Agreements and Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation

Checkloading:--In connection with the conduct of purchase programs the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation has engaged the services of the State inspection organizations to check the quantity and grade of commodities procured by the Corporation from vendors throughout the States, as they are loaded into freight cars and trucks. The inspectors perform this service for the Corporation at the same time they perform the inspection service for the vendors.

Inspection:--In connection with the purchase of commodities by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, the State inspection services have been employed to inspect the commodities as they are received in the states indicated. In these states the Corporation has paid the cost of the inspection.

Milk marketing control:--In several states there have been established milk control boards which work very closely with the milk market administrators operating under agreements and orders issued by the Division of Marketing and Marketing Agreements for the regulation of the flow of milk and its products in various marketing areas. The Federal agreements and orders which apply to fluid milk flowing in or substantially affecting interstate commerce are supplemented by similar control by the State milk boards.

Forest Service

Forest fire cooperation:--On the basis of a determination of the extent of forest land in private and state ownership which is in need of protection from fire and of the means of giving it adequate protection, a program is jointly engaged in. The work is carried on under agreements, fire plans, and budgets which are jointly executed by the proper Federal and state officers.

Weather Bureau

State Departments of Agriculture and Agricultural Colleges cooperate with the Weather Bureau in connection with the distribution of daily forecasts, special forecasts for spraying and harvesting operations and special warnings of frosts, cold waves, heavy snows, etc.
